Generated: 9/13/2026, 5:49:51 PM

Executive Summary

Illicit funds originating from a reported investment scam were traced from the victim's wallet through a multi-hop network of intermediary addresses. The perpetrators used fan-out splitting techniques and cross-case intermediary wallets to layer the funds and evade detection. The primary cash-out destination was identified as Binance, with additional paths leading to Kraken and OKX.

Identified Cash-Out Point

Exchange: Binance

Deposit Address: 0x28C6c06298d514Db089934071355E5743bf21d60

Estimated Value: Unknown

Modus Operandi & Layering

1. The perpetrator induced the victim to transfer assets to an initial receiving wallet under the guise of an investment opportunity.
2. The illicit proceeds were immediately fragmented across multiple recipient wallets using fan-out transfer patterns to layer the transaction trail.
3. Funds traversed shared intermediary wallets previously flagged in separate cybercrime investigations, indicating an organized laundering network.
4. Pre-deposit staging wallets consolidated the layered assets before sending direct deposit transactions to major centralized cryptocurrency exchanges.
5. The shortest and primary laundering path terminated at Binance, while secondary split transactions reached Kraken and OKX.
